

Local architects to consult on riverfront master plan

By Susan Palmer, The Register-Guard, Published: Jan 13, 2009

The community members guiding the riverfront master plan made their first big decision this month by selecting local firm Rowell Brokaw Architects to lead them through the public phase and final design of the planning process.

Rowell Brokaw was selected from among 15 applicants who applied to the Eugene Water and Electric Board. The publicly owned utility plans to develop its riverfront property once it moves operations to a new site under construction in West Eugene.

Read more in Wednesday's Register-Guard.